

A HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur
Makes Gray Hair Vanish—A
Remedy for All Hair Troubles

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is thin or turning gray, get a bottle of this remedy from your druggist today, and see what it will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

CIRCUS STOPPED TO WATER

The Ringling Brothers show passed through town over the S. P. yesterday, en route from Tucson to Deming. There were four trains, all of which, to the great delight of the San Simon small boys, stopped here in order that the engines might take water. There was thus time for the Young Americans to see "the elephant."—Artesian Belt.

ROMANCE AND COMEDY REIGN AT THE ROYAL

Films that are attractive, more than usually so make up the program at the Royal which changes tonight. There is a thrilling hunting scene with a drama running through it which especially deserves mention and will surely please. This is entitled "A Passing Fancy." It tells a story of a young wife who is invited to attend a hunt but whose husband enters an objection. She goes, however, and the scenes at the hunt are vividly depicted. The husband, a physician, sees the passing hunt and follows, becomes involved in a quarrel with the escort of his wife and challenges him to a duel to be fought later. The interior is injured later in the day by a fall during the course of the hunt and the physician finally consents to treat the rival he has recognized for his wife's affections.

"A Spanish Love Song" tells a story of a misadventured betrothal to which both parties object. The groom to be is sent to Mexico where he meets Juanita, a charming Mexican girl and falls in love. Jealousy and consequent danger for the American lover are depicted in following scenes and finally Juanita saves her lover. He is called home to wed his fiancée and reluctantly leaves. Disconsolate Juanita follows. On the eve of his wedding the lover is informed that his betrothed has eloped. He hears a guitar playing outside and rushes down to find Juanita whom he had not told of the cause of his leaving before his departure. These pictures weave a charming romance.

"The Diving Girl" is a comedy. A young girl is taken to the seashore by her uncle and her escapades drive him to desperation and make this film a scream of laughter from start to climax.

"A Romance of Pond Grove" tells a story of a young and wealthy man losing his fortune and being gilded
